ON A STRIKE.

WORK STOPPED AT THE FULTON COTTON SPINNING CO.

The Operatives Leave Their Looms and Walk Out of the Weaving Department Without Giving Notice and Demand a Restoration of Wages.

Yesterday morning a rumor circulated through the city to the effect that the operatives of the Fulton spinning company were on a strike, and that the mill had shut down in consequence.

A construction man at once chartered one of Ed. Peters' glass fronts and was soon landed at the mill.

Meeting Superintendent King the reporter stated the object of his visit and asked him to give a statement of the matter.

"The trouble is this," said Mr. King, "about 5 o'clock this morning the operatives of the weaving department of the mill, numbering fifty, walked into a body at the office and asked for an increase in their wages."

"Some of them make as much as six and a half dollars a week, and others do not get more than four and a half dollars for the same period."

"The operatives of the mill, numbering fifty, walked into a body at the office and asked for an increase in their wages."

BEALEY'S MUSIC HALL.

A Talk With Mr. Healey Concerning the Proposed Building.

Mr. T. G. Healey, who is planning to erect a sixty thousand dollar music hall, at the corner of Broad, Walton and Forsyth streets.

This block fronts Walton street two hundred feet, and is one hundred and twenty-five deep.

A conversation reporter sought Mr. Healey yesterday and asked him how soon work would begin.

"I have not fully matured my plans yet, but I build the music hall, work will commence early next year," he replied.

Mr. Dan Grant, who is connected with the S. M. Inman & Co., reached his twenty-ninth birthday last Wednesday. The event was

The ladies of St. Philip's church gave a series of entertainments on Thursday at the residence of Mrs. N. P. T. Finch. It was wet and stormy, but by eight o'clock nearly every chair in the spacious parlors. About eighty were present, and the proceeds were fifty dollars.

The programme printed was exactly what the entertainment was opened with singing of one of Chopin's exquisite nocturnes by Miss Ella F. Small and Mr. Samuel Bradley.

the following evening, the production of "Lellyhott," Mr. Chesapeake's Dream of Shyltick." Mr. Lellyhott, later in the evening, presented an instantaneous charcoal sketch of Shyltick, and immediately commenced singing. His voice, full, sweet voice was highly appreciated, and he was recalled. The two surprise guests of the evening were Miss Willie Bell and Mr. Frank Banks. The former recited "The Wreck of the Great Eastern," and Mr. Banks sang "The Open" In such a charming manner that everybody present was delighted. Mr. Banks, who had recently removed to the city, and who had been in the city for some time, was warmly welcomed and secured a prize. He is young man, and his voice is further developed he will have a large audience. When he and Mr. Bradley, the close Shyltick, La Savanade, the appearance of the evening demanded still another effort.

The next entertainment of the ladies will take place on an early day at 10 p. M. Dickens, when Sullivan's new play, "The Mikado," will be given in fine style.

city, and is the coming centennial of the city's birth. The first rehearsal will take opera, Monday night at Mrs. N. P. T. Theatre street. Mr. Hugh Angus, a member of the Mikado company, now occupying the theatre, New York, will be present, and the stage business of the opera. Mr. Angus will be in the city a few days, and he can present at the first rehearsal. The cost will be next week.

Mr. Charles W. Crawford has returned to New York and told some interesting about his visit. He said yesterday:

There is a brass goods craze in New York market is packed with brass. There are on Fourteenth street that deal in copper. They have chairs, beds, mats, cushions and various other articles and it is a very profitable business. The craze is a movement make their own brass plaques on own hammering. The figures are only the art is easy to acquire."

"What else?"
"Well, I never before saw such an array of diamonds. The patterns are exquisite," the visitor said, "and the stones are especially lovely."
Crankschaw added:
"The Mikado is all the go in New York and is being at the Fifth Avenue and the Strand. The Fifth Avenue the costumes, which are splendid, are the most magnificent I ever saw."

Mary Anderson. She draws well. She is as ever. I saw her twice, once in a called "Comedy and Tragedy" the latter part of that she is the best woman you ever saw. You may get of the way she draws when I tell you I dollars for gallery seats. She don't and raze, however. Her company is English, and man is very fine. PALMETTO POLITICS.

THE GOVERNMENTAL QUESTION DISCUSSED.

The People's Party about to select candidates for Governor—whether to select a man who is a native son of the State, or a man who is a native son of the State, or a man who is a native son of the State.

SENATE, S. C., November 4.—[Special Correspondence.]—South Carolinians are more conservative than Georgians—they are not generally stirred up as much about politics. This year, however, the gubernatorial question is already being extensively discussed, and candidates for the position are being named a year before the meeting of the state democratic convention.

Rep. Hugh S. Thompson, of Richland, the present incumbent, has been mentioned among the candidates. There is no public man in South Carolina more popular than Governor Thompson, nor is there a more conscientious man or thorough gentleman in the state. His nomination for the governorship by the state convention in 1882, was hailed with pleasure throughout the state. He was elected governor over the bostful greenbacker, J. Hendrix McLane, and was re-nominated and re-elected without opposition last year. He has made a good, conservative governor. Before his nomination for governor he had been, for six years, superintendent of education. He is a good speaker, and can be truly said of him that he has sought him, he did not seek the office.

Colonel John Peter Richardson, of Charleston, has been mentioned as a candidate for governor. Colonel Richardson is now serving his third term as state treasurer, and comes from a stock which has served the state long and well. His grandfather, John Richardson, was in-law and his first cousin, all filled the gubernatorial chair of Carolina. The colonel is a pleasant person, a most agreeable man, with marked executive ability, and numbers friends throughout the state.

General Edward McCrady, a leading lawyer of the Charleston bar, and a man of great literary ability, is also a gubernatorial candidate. A member of the legislature since '60, he is the author of a law which has made a deep impression upon the state—the state railroad election law. He took an active part for the laws against duelling and carrying concealed weapons, and he has the honor of being the first who suggested the state railroad commission. General McCrady is unquestionably one of the most influential members of the state legislature.

The classic "city by the sea" has another candidate, in the person of Captain William A. Courtenay, mayor of Charleston, whose wonderful record as the reform mayor of that city, gives him a firm hold in the popular estimation. He has made a great success of his administration as mayor, and has the ability to make as good a governor.

Uncle George Tillman, of Edgefield, a candidate, and he is regarded as one of the smartest public men in the state. For several years he has been a member of congress, and to him, perhaps, more than to any other Carolina congressman, does South Carolina enjoy having seven, instead of five congressmen, as formerly.

The political rise of John C. Sheppard, another of Edgefield's sons, is something remarkable. When about twenty-six years of age he was elected to the St. Louis convention. The same year he was elected a member of the legislature. At twenty-seven he was elected speaker of the house, a position he held for five years. In '82 he was elected lieutenant-governor, and now, not yet thirty-six years old, he is serving his second term in this office, and is mentioned for governor.

Colonel James N. Lipscomb, of Newberry, has also been spoken of. For nearly nine years he has been at the head of the grange in South Carolina, was state senator, and in '83 was elected one of the five members of the state executive committee. That winter he was elected controller general, and last November he was elected to fill the unexpired congressional term of the late John H. Evans. General Bratton has been very prominently mentioned before in connection with the office of governor.

Samuel Dibble, of Orangeburg, like Tillman, is a congressman, and like that gentleman, has also been spoken of for governor. He is a leading citizen of the lower portion of South Carolina and represents the most important district in congress, for it is in his district that the city of Charleston is situated. Mr. Dibble has been elected to congress two or three times.

Colonel Asbury Coward, of York, is one of the leading citizens of the state. In connection with the gallant Michael Jenkins, he started a military school in Yorkville thirty years ago, and it still is successful operation. Not a few of the best officers of the state are graduates of his school. Colonel Coward is now superintendent of education.

The state of South Carolina also has a candidate for governor, Colonel Benjamin W. Edwards—a lawyer and president of the Baptist state convention. He is the only gubernatorial candidate from the "Piedmont" section. Of the above, Thompson, the Governor, and Edwards are the only ones who are teachers by profession; Courtenay is a manager of steamship lines from Charleston to New York and Philadelphia; McCrady, Sheppard, Dibble and Edwards are lawyers, while Richardson, Tillman, Lipscomb and Bratton are identified more with planting than any other profession.

Such is a glance at the gubernatorial candidates which have been mentioned in this state. Doubtless other candidates will appear in the field before the convention meets next summer. The number of candidates show what a great state South Carolina is, for it is not every state that has such a good array of candidates to pick from when she wants a governor.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

A Few Words of Interest About the Clothing Trade.

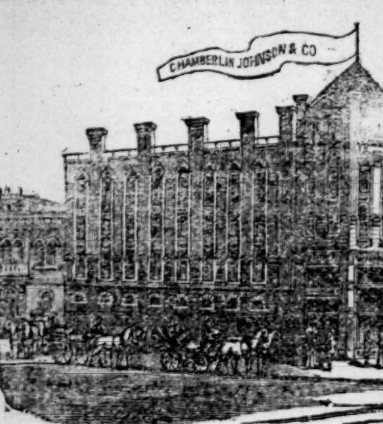

One of the most important branches of Atlanta's large and rapidly growing commercial interests is the clothing trade. There is no city in the south that can cope with us in this line, and our goods are sent to all parts of the neighboring states.

In the competition of city life the clothing business may be regarded as one of the greatest importance to the community in furnishing those evidences of refinement and taste in dress that are represented in fashionable and well fitting garments.

One of the houses in this line of business which has been foremost in promoting the standard of elegance in dress, that of A. S. Rosenthal, the "old reliable" dealer, have obtained an enviable reputation, and rank as one of the best in the state. They have been in Atlanta many years and have always been known for the extra good quality of their clothing. They are not only of the country as to quality, texture, and style of goods. The premises occupied by them is central, large and commodious, and the owners are greatly respected by the community as fine practical business men and men of high character. For this reason, it is no wonder that they have the esteem of the better class of our people, and built up a trade that is equal to the best in the clothing business.

Always to the best trade, and always keeping their goods at the lowest possible prices, they have the confidence of everybody, and a result of clothing sent out by them invariably means satisfaction. They are now stocked with a beautiful line of fall and winter goods, and those needing clothing cannot do better than by calling first at A. S. Rosenthal's, corner Whitehall and Alabama streets.

The classic "city by the sea" has another candidate, in the person of Captain William A. Courtenay, mayor of Charleston, whose wonderful record as the reform mayor of that city, gives him a firm hold in the popular estimation. He has made a great success of his administration as mayor, and has the ability to make as good a governor.
